Dwyka announces that a drilling contractor has been engaged and has commenced the second phase of diamond drilling at the Muremera Nickel Project in Burundi.

The drilling targets have been identified following intensive VTEM surveys that generated signatures consistent with massive sulphide bodies that may have a nickel signature and are approximately 10km from the Barrick/Xstrata Kabanga Project ("Kabanga"), currently the world's largest undeveloped nickel sulphide project.

Following drilling, the core samples will be assayed by ALS Chemex Laboratory in Johannesburg.

Dwyka secured 100% ownership of the Muremera Project in March 2009 with the handover of the exploration programme from BHP Billiton now complete. The next Phase of the work programme has been submitted to the Government of Burundi in order to secure the extension of the current exploration licence.

Melissa Sturgess, CEO of Dwyka Resources commented "We are delighted to have secured 100% ownership from BHP Billiton who has previously invested in excess of US$7.3m into the Project. We are now proceeding on schedule with the planned exploration programme at Muremera and remain optimistic about the project's potential."
